This book is an important milestone in the history not only of Namibia, but of Africa. Author Hans Beukes leaves the reader with total freedom to make his own conclusions about our country's long walk to liberation. The metaphor is clear. A long walk that uncovers a lot of experiences and brings a lot of realisations. Professor Mburumba Kerina In the late 1950s Hans Beukes, a native of the then South West Africa, was a student at the University of Cape Town when he won a solidarity scholarship tenable for three years at the University of Oslo in Norway. At your age, Mr Beukes, his professor in Constitutional History told him, it ought to be an adventure. And so it turned out. As he was about to board an ore carrier bound for Oslo from Port Elizabeth, the South African government confiscated his passport. Back in Cape Town he met an American activist who would become a key figure in the US Civil Rights movement. Allard Lowenstein had no words of comfort for him, but a...
